

Jane Goodall

Jane Goodall was introduced to chimpanzee when she was young, her dad gave her a toy chimpanzee and she kept it by her side all the time and still has it now.

When she was a little girl she went into her families chicken hutch and waited 5 hours for a chicken to lay an egg.

When she came out her mum and dad had called the police and reported her missing.

She didn't have money to go to college.

She first went to Africa at the age 23 to see her friend. She met the famous scientist Dr. Louis S. B. Leakey who asked her to work for him and go to Tanzania to research the chimpanzees, she took her mum with her.

She learnt that chimps were not vegetarian and that they used tools and behaviour like humans.

She married a photographer that was following her.

Even when she was famous people called her for naming the chimpanzees instead of giving them a number and for giving them a feeding place instead of letting them find it themselves.

She got the chimpanzees famous and everyone new their names.

She is 86 years old now.
